

How accelerated change in ESG is impacting your organization

Embracing innovation in a time of crisis will equip organizations to survive future economic uncertainty. Here's a look at the impact this has on Environmental, Social, and Governance (ESG).

More efficient organizations are owning their impact on climate change head-on and positively impacting their bottom line and talent acquisition.

In 2021, only 19% reported that their organization was doing very well meeting sustainability goals.

In 2022, that has risen to 24%, demonstrating that sustainability hasn't fallen by the wayside because of the pandemic.

And 69% now believe that they have a better ability to meet ESG goals because of the accelerations they've felt.
